

Removed ability to see 16-digit credit card numbers 🔒

This article applies to:

Keap always places a high priority on the security of its customers and the clients you serve. So we wanted to make you aware of a change to the Max Classic app that will protect you even more:

- On November 1, we will remove any functionality that allows you to see 16-digit credit card numbers.
- This protects you and your clients from data breaches, ensuring your full protection should mobile devices or the apps on them become compromised.
- This is simply a preventative measure that will improve security for Keap and you well into the future.
- There should be little to no app interruption as we make this update.
- You will continue to be able to create and charge orders with credit cards that are saved to contacts.
- You will be able to view the last 4 digits of any credit cards that are saved to contacts.

Should you have any questions, please respond to the email you were sent about this change or contact your regular customer service representative.
